

Does a behavior-dependent key beat the context-only default?

bars paired within one source bank; dotted = that bank's shuffled-key null (p95); dashed = noise-floor ceiling; whiskers = 95% CI

Marker (control) (source A5)
training-completion key, per context ($\rho = +0.75$, $n = 30$)

